WORLD HABITAT DAY - AWARENESS PROGRAMME

The Faculty of Botany, Department of Life Sciences organized an awareness program for World Habitat Day on October 7th, 2023, which saw tremendous participation from botany students. The primary objective of the programme was to foster a deeper understanding and awareness among attendees regarding global habitat concerns and the significance of preserving and restoring habitats. The awareness programme heightened sense of awareness and appreciation among the attendees regarding the delicate balance between human development and the preservation of natural habitats. The interactive nature of the presentations encouraged an exchange of ideas and perspectives, fostering a sense of responsibility towards environmental conservation.
