Editor's Note

Dear Readers,

As November drapes the world in soft twilight, 'IN'sight welcomes you to the November edition titled "Nocturne De Novembre", themed "Evoking the Silent Nights."

November arrives quietly—a month suspended between the fading warmth of autumn and the hush before winter's embrace. The air turns gentler, the nights deepen, and the world seems to exhale. In this calm, we find a different kind of music—not one of celebration, but of reflection. The silent nights whisper of endings and beginnings, of stillness that allows us to listen, to feel, and to simply be.

Nocturne De Novembre is a serenade to introspection—a reminder that silence, too, has its rhythm and grace. As festivities mellow and the year begins to wane, these tranquil nights invite us to slow down, to gather our thoughts like fallen leaves, and to find beauty in quiet moments.

Within these pages, you'll find stories and voices that echo the serenity of November—musings that drift like gentle lullabies through the night, carrying warmth, nostalgia, and a touch of wonder.

May these silent nights remind us that even in stillness, the heart can hum with meaning; that in the quiet, we often hear ourselves most clearly.

Wishing you peace, reflection, and soft light through the nights of November.

Happy Reading!

Yi Peng Lantern Festival

India has many vibrant festivals and events that have been celebrated for thousands of years. Diwali is one of them, usually celebrated in the months of October or November. You might be wondering why I am talking about Diwali instead of the Yi Peng Lantern Festival. Well, that's because this festival is quite similar to Diwali. So, now let's talk about the Yi Peng Lantern Festival.

The Yi Peng Lantern Festival originated in the ancient Lanna Kingdom of northern Thailand almost 700 to 800 years ago. It is celebrated at the end of the rainy season, during a time when people honor Buddhism. People celebrate this festival by releasing khom loi (sky lanterns) to pay respect to and seek blessings from Lord Buddha. The release of lanterns symbolizes letting go of bad luck and misfortune. Tourists from all over the world visit Thailand during this festival to experience this beautiful event.

International Men's Day: Honoring Men, Promoting Health and Equality

Celebrated annually on November 19th, International Men's Day is a global initiative that recognizes the positive value men bring to the world, their families, and communities. It is a day to celebrate their achievements and contributions, while also raising awareness of the challenges they face, particularly in terms of mental health, emotional well-being, and societal expectations.

Men are often expected to be strong, stoic, and self-reliant, which can lead to unspoken struggles with stress, depression, and anxiety. International Men's Day encourages men to speak openly about their health—physical and mental—and to seek support when needed without shame or stigma. The day also aims to promote positive role models, respectful gender relations, and a greater understanding of what it means to be a man in today's world. The six pillars of International Men's Day include promoting men's health, improving gender relations, and highlighting positive male role models. It's also a chance to shine a light on issues like fatherhood, male suicide, and the education of boys.

Ultimately, International Men's Day is about creating a more inclusive, supportive, and compassionate society—one where men and boys are empowered to live healthy, meaningful lives and contribute positively to those around them.

Movie Review: Major (2022) – A Tribute to the Spirit of a True Hero

“Don’t come up; I’ll handle them.” — These words, spoken by Major Sandeep Unnikrishnan during the 26/11 Mumbai attacks, echo through Major, a film that celebrates bravery, sacrifice, and love for the nation.

Directed by Sashi Kiran Tikka and co-written by Adivi Sesh (who also plays the lead role), Major is a powerful biographical drama that goes beyond the headlines. It doesn’t just show how Major Sandeep became a hero — it shows why. From his childhood dreams of serving the nation to his final moments of courage during the terrorist attack at the Taj Hotel, the movie captures the making of a soldier and the heart of a patriot.

Adivi Sesh delivers a deeply moving performance, portraying both the soldier’s strength and the son’s humanity with sincerity. Saiee Manjrekar and Revathi add emotional depth, highlighting the personal sacrifices that come with a life of service. The film’s technical brilliance — from its gripping action sequences to its stirring background score — ensures that every frame feels real and respectful.

What makes Major stand out is its balance: it’s neither overly dramatic nor purely patriotic. It humanizes a soldier who lived with love, laughter, and duty. The film inspires students and young audiences to understand that heroism isn’t about fame — it’s about purpose and compassion.

★ Rating: ★★★★★½ (4.5/5)

Verdict: Major is not just a movie; it’s an emotional salute to a man who lived and died for his country. A must-watch for every Indian youth.

NOVEL REVIEW: The Da Vinci Code

- Dan Brown

Dan Brown's The Da Vinci Code is one of those books you just can't put down once you start. It's got everything — mystery, history, art, and a whole lot of suspense. The story follows Robert Langdon and Sophie Neveu as they race through Europe, cracking secret codes and uncovering shocking truths hidden in da Vinci's paintings. What's cool about the book is how it mixes real history with wild theories that make you think, "Wait, could this actually be true?" It's fast-paced, thought-provoking, and honestly feels like a movie playing out in your head. The Da Vinci Code isn't just about solving a mystery — it's about questioning what we've always believed and seeing the world with a bit more curiosity.

Mental Health Matters

By K. Christopher

Mental health is just as important as physical health | Raju Acharya

[Neredmet] Times Bureau - Digital In observance of World Mental Health Week, the Indian Psychologist Society, Telangana Chapter organized an impactful awareness program at the Nest Rehabilitation Center in Neredmet on Tuesday. The event aimed to highlight the critical importance of mental health and educate the public on the harmful effects of substance abuse. Several dignitaries, including eminent psychologist Dr. Raju Acharya, Guru Madhav, Vani Ramji, and Neredmet Sub-Inspector Ramesh, who attended as chief guests. The program attracted a large gathering, including local residents, patients undergoing rehabilitation, and the center's staff. Speaking on the occasion, Dr. Raju Acharya emphasized that mental health is as vital as physical health and deserves equal attention. He addressed the growing concern around the consumption of intoxicants such as alcohol, gutka, cigarettes, and ganja, warning of the serious mental and physical health consequences associated with their use. "Substance abuse leads to unhealthy behavioral changes and a range of mental health disorders.

However, with the right intervention, including psychological counseling and medical treatment, it is possible to overcome addiction and significantly reverse its harmful effects," Dr. Acharya said. He further urged individuals struggling with addiction—and their families—to seek timely support from qualified psychologists and counselors. Sub-Inspector Ramesh also spoke about the legal and social implications of drug abuse, calling on the community to remain vigilant and proactive in discouraging such behavior. He commended the efforts of organizations like Nest for their role in rehabilitation and spreading awareness. MS Murthy, Founder of Nest Rehabilitation Center, and Director Prasanna reiterated their commitment to promoting mental wellness and helping individuals achieve freedom from addiction. "Our mission is to build a society where mental health is prioritized, and addiction is no longer a taboo but a challenge we face together," Murthy stated. As part of its ongoing initiative, the Indian Psychologist Society plans to conduct similar awareness programs across the state to foster greater public understanding and reduce the stigma surrounding mental health and substance use disorders. The event concluded with a community interaction session, where attendees engaged in open dialogue with experts and shared their experiences. The initiative was widely appreciated by participants, marking another step forward in the battle against addiction and mental health ignorance.

This World Mental Health Week, the Indian Psychologist Society, Telangana Chapter, organized a powerful awareness program at the Nest Rehabilitation Center in Neredmet. The event, led by Dr. Raju Acharya, was all about reminding people that taking care of our mind is just as important as taking care of our body.

Dr. Acharya spoke about how substance abuse can harm not only our health but also our peace of mind. He stressed that with the right support—counseling, care, and compassion—people can overcome addiction and rebuild their lives. The program also featured inspiring words from Sub-Inspector Ramesh and MS Murthy, who encouraged everyone to stay aware, be kind, and help those who are struggling.

Events like these are a much-needed reminder that mental health isn't something to be ashamed of—it's something to be talked about, understood, and cared for. After all, healing begins when we start listening.

When Life Gives You Tangerines Series Introduction - A Fresh Take on Life

We've all grown up hearing the age-old advice: "When life gives you lemons, make lemonade." It's classic, but also... a little outdated. Let's be honest—life in today's world isn't just sour like lemons. Sometimes, it's bright, zesty, and unexpectedly sweet—like tangerines. This is where our new magazine series, When Life Gives You Tangerines, begins. Instead of focusing on bitterness, it's about finding the little bursts of joy hidden in everyday life. Think of missed buses that turn into long talks with friends, assignments that push you to discover your hidden talents, or awkward situations that later become your favorite stories to laugh at. Tangerines represent that balance—sweetness with just the right touch of tang. College life especially is full of these "tangerine moments": late-night chai sessions, random adventures, group projects that somehow work out, or simply the joy of sharing snacks in class. Through this series, we'll explore how to peel away the messiness and enjoy the zest of student life. Each article will bring you stories, reflections, and a reminder that life doesn't always have to be sour—it can be juicy, surprising, and worth savoring. Lesson: When life gives you tangerines, don't just make juice—share the segments, enjoy the zest, and taste the sweetness of every little moment. 🍊🌟

Education Trap: The Reality Behind the Classroom Dream

Review of "Education Trap" by Nazir A. Jogezeai

In his eye-opening piece "Education Trap," Nazir A. Jogezeai breaks the myth that education is always the path to success. He argues that today's system often widens the gap between the rich and the poor instead of closing it. Jogezeai points out how students in elite schools are trained to lead, while those in underfunded public schools are left struggling with outdated methods and limited resources. His take on the Single National Curriculum (SNC) is especially powerful. It promises equality but ends up deepening differences because not everyone gets the same quality of teaching or materials.

He also highlights the growing pressure on families who see education as an expensive investment and the declining respect for teachers who deserve much more recognition.

"Education Trap" pushes readers to question what real equality in learning means. Is it just about going to school, or about getting the same chance to dream and succeed?

Verdict: Honest, bold, and a must-read for anyone who believes education should empower -not divide.

Book Review: The Laughing Skull

Ruskin Bond is usually celebrated for his warm, nostalgic tales of childhood, hills, and human connections. But in The Laughing Skull, he steps into darker territory, proving that even the gentlest of storytellers can master the art of suspense and the supernatural.

This collection brings together ghostly tales, eerie encounters, and mysterious happenings from Bond's pen. The title story itself is unsettling – a skull that laughs, not mockingly, but in a way that unsettles both characters and readers alike. From there, the book takes you on a journey through haunted mansions, spectral figures, and strange twists of fate that make you wonder whether the world around us holds more than what meets the eye.

What makes The Laughing Skull stand out is not jump-scares or horror clichés, but Bond's unique style of storytelling. His writing is simple, direct, and hauntingly atmospheric. He doesn't rely on blood and gore; instead, he builds tension slowly, using everyday details – a deserted lane, a creaking floorboard, the chill of mountain mist – to blur the line between reality and imagination. That's what makes his stories unforgettable: they feel real enough to happen to anyone, anywhere.

Yet, beyond the chills, the book also reflects Bond's deep understanding of human nature. His characters often face loneliness, guilt, or longing – emotions that make them vulnerable to the shadows around them. In a way, the supernatural in these stories feels like an extension of human fears and desires.

Verdict:

The Laughing Skull is not just a ghost story collection; it is Ruskin Bond's reminder that the world is full of mysteries we cannot explain. For readers who enjoy eerie tales told with elegance, it is the perfect read. Spooky enough to send shivers down your spine, yet gentle enough to be read at night without nightmares, this book is both a comfort and a chill. So, the next time the wind rattles a window or a laugh echoes in an empty room, you might just remember Bond's words – and wonder if the unseen is closer than you think.

Demon Slayer: Infinity Castle Arc Part 1 – Akaza's Return

● Setting the Stage – The Infinity Castle Opens

The Infinity Castle Arc begins with Muzan calling all the surviving Upper Moons into his eerie, ever-shifting fortress. This setting itself feels like a character – haunting, endless, and chaotic, perfectly symbolizing the final battle's unpredictability. The tension skyrockets as the Demon Slayer Corps are suddenly pulled into this labyrinth, forced into scattered, high-stakes fights.

🔥 Akaza's Return – A Spotlight Moment

Akaza, Upper Moon Three, finally takes the center stage again after his iconic fight with Rengoku. His reappearance in the Infinity Castle is nothing short of electrifying.

Redemption Undertones: Unlike many other demons, Akaza's arc is laced with tragedy and humanity. His flashbacks reveal his harsh upbringing, the loss of his loved ones, and how Muzan manipulated his despair into demonic servitude. This depth makes his return more than just a fight – it's a story about regret and identity.

Rivalry & Honor: His battle against Giyuu and Tanjiro showcases not just his overwhelming martial arts prowess but also his strange sense of respect for strong opponents. He despises weakness but admires determination, which creates a fascinating dynamic.

Emotional Punch: The climax of his story doesn't just highlight his strength but his humanity buried beneath centuries of bloodshed. His inner conflict – torn between Muzan's curse and the lingering memory of his fiancée – makes him one of the most compelling demons in the series.

✂️ Akaza's Return – Tanjiro & Giyuu vs Upper Moon 3

🔥 The Build-Up

The Infinity Castle scatters the Demon Slayers, throwing them straight into one-on-one battles. Tanjiro and Giyuu end up facing Akaza, the same demon who killed Rengoku. For fans, this already sets the stakes sky-high – it's not just another fight, it's personal.

👤 The Fight

Martial Arts Mastery: Akaza's unique fighting style (Destructive Death: Compass Needle) lets him sense battle intent, making him nearly untouchable. His fluid hand-to-hand combat feels less like raw demon brutality and more like an elegant, terrifying martial art.

Tanjiro's Growth: Unlike during the Mugen Train arc, Tanjiro has grown both in skill and mental strength. He pushes himself with Sun Breathing, but Akaza's adaptability is overwhelming.

Giyuu's Shine: Giyuu steps out of the "stoic Hashira" role and proves why he earned his Water Hashira title. His Eleventh Form: Dead Calm moment is breathtaking – Akaza respects his swordsmanship enough to acknowledge him as a true opponent.

● The Flashback (Akaza's Past)

This is the real emotional dagger. We learn Akaza was once Hakuji, a human boy beaten down by life's cruelty: His father committed suicide to prevent Hakuji from stealing for medicine.

He found redemption under a martial arts master, who treated him with kindness.

He was engaged to Koyuki, his master's daughter.

But tragedy struck – both were poisoned, taken from him.

His despair led him to Muzan, who turned his rage into demonic power.

This backstory reframes him: not just a monster, but a broken man who lost everything.

❤️ The Turning Point

Tanjiro's unyielding willpower shakes Akaza. For the first time, Akaza hesitates – he remembers his fiancée's words. Muzan's curse clashes with his human memories, creating an inner war.

Symbolism: While other demons cling to Muzan's ideals, Akaza's humanity isn't fully erased. He respects the strength of humans like Rengoku and Tanjiro, and ultimately, he begins to reject Muzan's control.

🔥 Akaza's End

Unlike most demons who fight to the bitter end, Akaza does something shocking: he accepts death. His body starts regenerating automatically, but his soul fights back – he chooses to let go and reunite with Koyuki in the afterlife.

This makes his death one of the most poetic and heartbreaking moments in Demon Slayer.

★ Final Verdict

Akaza's return in the Infinity Castle Arc is not just a fight – it's a clash of ideologies. Strength vs compassion, despair vs hope, eternity vs humanity. His story makes him one of the best-written Upper Moons and leaves readers both satisfied and heartbroken.

Rating: 9.5/10 – A flawless mix of adrenaline and tragedy.

Educational Trip To Manali

The students of Little Flower Degree College went on an educational trip to Shimla, Manali, and Kullu from 22nd to 30th September. The trip offered a blend of learning and recreation as students explored major attractions like The Ridge, Kufri, Solang Valley, and Rohtang Pass. They also visited Hadimba Temple, Manikaran Gurudwara, and local handicraft centers in Kullu. The journey provided valuable insights into culture, geography, and tourism while strengthening friendships and creating unforgettable memories.

Lenvin Club Elocution - "Kill The Cancer"

ISKCON, in collaboration with LENVIN, organized an intracollege elocution competition on the theme "Kill the Cancer." The event aimed to raise awareness about cancer and encourage students to express their perspectives on prevention, treatment, and emotional resilience. Participants from various streams delivered insightful speeches highlighting medical and social approaches to combating the disease. The competition provided a valuable platform for students to enhance their public speaking skills while spreading an important health message.

Rev. Bro. Shajan Anthony Visit

Rev. Bro. Shajan Anthony, Provincial Superior, Province of Pune, visited Little Flower Degree College on the 16th and 17th of October 2025. He was cordially received on campus by the Correspondent, Rev. Bro. Arun Prakash, Rev. Bro. John Kallarackal, and Principal Mrs. P. Jayanthi Reddy. Rev. Bro. John Kallarackal welcomed him, describing the occasion as a "homecoming," as Bro. Shajan had earlier been part of the institution.

Addressing the faculty, he appreciated their efforts in achieving NAAC Accreditation and urged them to adopt creative and collaborative teaching methods. He emphasised the importance of nurturing entrepreneurship, sustainability, and holistic development among students.

In his meeting with the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC), Bro. Shajan commended the college's progress and encouraged a stronger focus on research, innovation, and the ethical use of technology. His visit inspired the faculty to uphold the Montfortian values of excellence, commitment, and social responsibility.

Endowment Cell - Fund Raising Event

As a part of Fund-Rising Initiative, Endowment Cell organized a program “SMALL ACTS-BIG IMPACTS”, ON 17TH October 2025 at Quadrangle from 10.00am onwards. As a part of initiative, the staff members enthusiastically arranged a variety of food stalls, offering delicious and creative dishes that drew great interest from students and faculty alike. The event witnessed active participation from students and contributed generously to the noble cause. This event was made both enjoyable and meaningful with palate display and preparation. Through this initiative, a total of Rs 40,000/- was raised, which will be utilized to support deserving students under the ENDOWMENT Cell. The event truly reflected the theme “Small Acts, Big Impacts”, that small contribution, when combined with collective effort and goodwill, can bring a positive change in the lives of students.

Certification Course On Multimedia

The Department of BA organized a 30-hour certificate course offering a foundational understanding of media communication and production. Students learned about media ethics, storytelling, cinematography, filmmaking, anchoring, and public speaking through sessions by experts from Mass Communication and Journalism. Mr. Akhil introduced editing and cinematography; Fr. Ashok focused on television news, interviews, and anchoring; Mr. Guru Nadkarni trained students in public speaking; and Fr. Prashant covered filmmaking and media ethics. The course concluded with a valedictory ceremony at Montfort Hall, where certificates were awarded by Fr. Lourdraj, Director Br. John, Principal Jayanthi Reddy, and Fr. Ashok, followed by the National Anthem.

Assumption University Director Visit

Rev. Bro. Dr. Sirichai Fonseka, President of Assumption University, Thailand, visited Little Flower Degree College on October 14, 2025. To mark this significant occasion, a special program was organized in Montfort Hall. The event commenced with a prayer, followed by an official welcome address delivered by Rev. Bro. John Kallarackal, Director of the College. In his address to the students and faculty, Rev. Bro. Dr. Sirichai Fonseka emphasized the importance of holistic education, global collaboration, and the pursuit of excellence in both academic and moral dimensions. His inspiring message motivated the students to uphold the values of discipline, integrity, and lifelong learning.

Subsequently, a special session was organized with the IQAC members. During this session, the Principal presented an overview of the college, elaborating on its vision, mission, and major activities. Rev. Bro. Dr. Sirichai Fonseka appreciated the commendable work being carried out by the institution despite its modest scale. He further encouraged continued efforts towards cultural exchange and academic collaboration between institutions, reinforcing the essence of shared learning and partnership.
