CALL FOR E-PAPERS

DE-RISKING ECONOMIC STRATEGIES - BUSINESS - COVID - 19

Covid-19 is a global health crisis which is affecting all sections of people. The most vulnerable groups being the elderly, persons with disability and the lower income groups. Global countries have adopted various methods to combat this pandemic. Considering the various approaches in use, understanding and consensus will evolve gradually. There has been a decrease in industrial and production activities for the past few months. A state of confusion has set in as a result of lack of clarity about the measures taken.

In the present scenario people and small businesses have to figure out how they can manage their income loss in the short term. Though the government has initiated some measures to aid the poor and marginalized section of the society, a large number of people are uncertain about their income and jobs in the future. Not only small and mid-size companies but leading companies are also financially disturbed. Among other things the financial strategies applied by companies regularly is also disrupted. The government and the entrepreneurs have to act swiftly in order to minimize the impact of this Pandemic. The industry has to be one step ahead and simultaneously think of the consequences of their decisions.

In this context we would like academicians and researchers and students to contribute their original research on any of the themes relevant to the topic.
